FORM NEW LENOX BOOSTER CLUB

ORGANIZATION TO PROMOTE LOCAL INTERESTS

Twenty-three leading citizens of New Lenox, defying inclement weather, met at the residence of Mr. Leonard Rought, Cedar road, Friday evening, December 3rd in a good-will get together. A buffet supper was served at 8:30. Mr. Rought presided as host and general chairman to start the "ball rolling." The meeting brought out an unanimous expression of opinion that a men's group of live-wires was a necessity to the continued growth of the community.

Informal talks were interjected as each man at the table introduced the friend next to him to the assembled group. Introductions were really not necessary. However, many former high lights in each man's past was brought to public attention to the amusement of all, providing many impromptu toasts.

Organization plans were outlined by the Rev. Vernon L. S. Jones, Vicar of Grace Episcopal church, whose Vestry initiated the movement for a men's club. Additional ideas were presented by the Rev. Wm. Orrick, Vicar of St. Paul's church, Manhattan, telling of the success of similar clubs in his own experience. "An organization such as this one is to be," said Mr. Orrick, "must be constructive as well as social. In a community such as exists in New Lenox an excellent group of men such as is here represented can be the means of civic betterment such as promotion of projects to stimulate more interest in the advantages offered to those who might be interested in making New Lenox their future home." Hearty endorsement of this expression of aim was given in brief talks by Mr. John J. Spuehler, Mr. Melvin Whittaker, and Mr. Geo. Moris.

Committees were appointed by the newly elected President of the organization, Mr. Leonard Rought, to report at the next meeting of the Club. By-laws and Rules committee, Edw. J. Hobson, chairman, Edw. Roswell and Edw. Morris. Social committee: Darwin G. Cooper, chairman, Geo. Morris and Earl Roth. The next meeting will be announced by the Secretary-Treasurer, John J. Spuehler.

Those present Friday evening will be Charter Members of the Club. Rules for the introduction of new members will be drawn up by the proper committee.

Given Fake Ticket For Parking Near Fire Hydrant

When Walter Lauffer, son of Wm. Lauffer, residing on a farm east of Mokena got into his auto which he had parked in front of the August Braun pool hall in Mokena last Friday night, he was greatly shocked and surprised to find a card in the car door signed "Mokena Fire Marshall" saying he was guilty of parking in front of fire hydrant and would have to appear Sunday afternoon in the office of Police Magistrate Albert Hentsch.

When he called at the home of Mr. Hentsch Sunday afternoon, Mr. Lauffer was more surprised when the police magistrate professed no knowledge of the charge or of the case. Mr. Lauffer next called on Mayor Harry F. Mall and he did not know anything about the case. Then Herman Schweser, the fire marshal was consulted and he also disclaimed any knowledge of the case. It was finally established that the entire affair was a joke pulled by a practical joker, but Mayor Mall does not look at it in that light and feels that the guilty party should be rounded up and made to realize that it is a serious thing to forge public officials names or titles. The matter was laid before the village board Tuesday for consideration.

Frankfort Youth To Study Music In Paris, France

Edward Balchowsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Balchowsky, left New York on November 9th for European countries. Word was received by his parents on Thanksgiving day from Lancaster, England, that he secured a position on a French Liner "The Lafayette" as an entertainer. His plans are to sail on to Paris, France, where he will study piano and voice. Our community should be proud of the fact that one in our midst is taking every opportunity to reach success by perseverance.

Community Tree And Santa Coming To Mokena Dec. 18

Plans are on foot for the observance of a real community Christmas party under the sponsorship of Cooper & Hostert and K. Sippel's Son in connection with the coupon auction sale to be held Saturday night, December 18th. Plans are to hold the party replete with a huge Christmas tree, Santa Claus, Community singing of Christmas songs, etc., in the yard in the rear of the Sippel store, commencing 8:45 p. m. Everyone invited. Come and bring the kiddies.

It Will Be "Ticklish Business" In Worth Soon

Chic Perkins-King, the whirlwind directress for "Ticklish Business", informs us that everything is in readiness for the grand opening of the new stage and auditorium of the Worth School, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 15, 16 and 17. This peppy musical comedy under the auspices of the Worth PTA, will be "the brightest and most glittering entertainment ever staged in Worth" to quote Mrs. Ruth Lange, president.

The cast of nearly 60 all home folks selected for this production have displayed some unusual talent and Chic Perkins-King promises a big surprise for those who attend this grand opening, Dec. 15, 16, 17.

You are going to wonder how such a big affair could be staged in so short a time and will open your eyes at the ability displayed by your own home folks. New scenery, elegant costumes for each of the many acts, and wonderful electrical effects. No long tedious waits, but a compact. Two hours of solid enjoyment. Tiresome performance from start to finish. A big double chorus composed of pretty girls and manly boys, introducing the very latest songs, full of action and dainty maneuvers. Something different. Something unusual. Every act is a distinct novelty. The pajama parade, little Dutch girls, Chinese shiks and the Michel Trio will amaze you with their singing, dancing and playing.

Tickets for this production may be obtained from Mrs. Ruth Lange, president of the Worth PTA, who says the ticket sale is going fine.

Doors open at 7:30. Curtain 8:30 sharp.

New Lenox Fire Ins. Co. To Hold 41 st. Meeting

The 41st annual meeting of the New Lenox Mutual County Fire Insurance Company will be held at the New Lenox State Bank on January 14 at 10 a. m., for the purpose of electing three directors.

Circulating Petition To Keep U. S. Out of War

An organized campaign to obtain the signatures of a majority of the citizens of Frankfort township, on petitions which call upon Congress to keep America out of war is to be launched immediately under the supervision of the Wm. Martin Post, No. 725, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. The appeal to Congress reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens of the United States of America, call upon the Congress and the President to adopt and apply policies designed to keep America out of war and supported by a national defense program adequate for the protection of our country and its people."

The plan to convey to Congress tangible evidence of the prevailing sentiment against war is the chief objective of a nationwide campaign being conducted by 3600 local units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States according to Commander Arthur C. Schiller.

"Under our form of government, the question of peace or war rests in the hands of Congress," Commander Schiller pointed out. "We, the people, expect members of Congress to vote in accordance with the will of their constituents. Petitions bearing the signatures of 25 million American citizens will tell Congress, in unmistakable terms, that the vast majority of the citizens of the United States want America to keep out of war."

A quantity of petition blanks have been received by Commander Schiller from national headquarters at Kansas City, Mo. These petition blanks will be circulated by members of Post No. 725 and distributed to various other civic, patriotic,

Mokena Business Places To Pay Special Tax After April 1st

Facing a financial emergency, the Mokena village board is looking about for means of creating an increase of revenue outside of the general taxes, vehicle and water tax.

At the meeting Tuesday night, Mayor Harry Mall suggested that the tavern licenses which are now $100 per year be boosted to $250 per year and that every business establishment in the village be required to pay a special tax. The board considered the matter pro and con and then decided that the license committee get together and work out a system of special taxation of various business establishments according to the amount of business done annually by such concerns.

Mayor Mall pointed out that Mokena has had the lowest tavern license rate of any municipality in northern Illinois.

The license committee is to report its findings back to the board for official consideration at the next regular village board meeting to be held the first Tuesday in January. The licenses as suggested would be payable every three months which make the payments easier to meet and would also mean a regular income for the village.

Repair of the village water tower drained the village treasury of available funds last summer and tax anticipation warrants on next year's taxes had to be issued to defray the repair bill.

Mokena had a special business license ordinance in force for a number of years, but during the height of the depression the board abolished it for the time being. Just what the new license fees will be has not been determined as yet.

Practically all the surrounding incorporated villages have special business licenses running as high as $50 per year for general stores. Tavern licenses in Frankfort are $300 per year and $150 in Tinley Park.

If the tavern licenses are raised to $250 per year and the special business licenses are created it is estimated that Mokena will have an added income of approximately $700 to $800 above the general tax. Water revenue income can only be applied for the water department and money derived from the village vehicle tax is used for the repair and maintenance of village streets, which do not come under the state gas tax program. Funds from the state gas tax can only be used on streets embraced in the arterial street system of the village.

Ice Skating Rink Being Built At Mokena

For a long time Mokena has been wrestling with the problem of providing some kind of recreation for its young folk and finally it was decided to take advantage of the WPA recreational fund made available for Will County towns. After a number of meetings at which heads of the various organizations of the village as well as representatives of the village board were present, the recreational project was taken up with Joseph Medura of Steger representing the WPA and the work of getting the project under way was begun.

A long piece of ground along side the Rock Island tracks across from the Mall Lumber yard was leased and work of building an ice skating rink has been under way the past week. The rink is to be flooded by the village and skating will be under the supervision of competent WPA instructors and supervisors.

Mayor Harry Mall and the village board are whole heartedly back of the project and the organizations which have sponsored it. The rink is over 200 feet long and about 50 feet wide. It is planned to use this rink as a base ball diamond in the summer time so it will serve a twofold purpose.

The new skating rink will be open to all from little tots to grown-ups and will be a big asset to the community and its youth.

religions and fraternal groups. Gold Star Mothers in this section will be given the first opportunity to affix their signatures to the petition according to Commander Schiller.

"It is the privilege of these mothers to be the first ones to raise their voices in opposition to war. Their signatures will be followed by the signatures of all war mothers, decorated heroes, disabled veterans, city and other public officials and then the rank and file of all the citizens."

OLD HOMER TWP. RESIDENT DIES TUESDAY MORN.

Mrs. Clara B. Kesser nee Ott, 69 years, died Tuesday morning at 2 a. m., in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Welter at Goodings Grove in Homer Township.

Mrs. Kesser nee Ott was born March 20, 1868 in Goodings Grove. On April 18, 1888 she was united in marriage with Sylvester Kesser in Lemont. Mr. Kesser died in 1903 due to exposure when he became stalled in a severe blizzard with his team within a mile and a half of his farm.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Wm. Kinney, Mrs. Elmer Skelton and Mrs. Andrew Welter; one son John Kesser, three brothers, M. Ott, John Ott of Lockport and Peter of Lemont; two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Bell, Reading, Mich., and Mrs. Marguerite Welch, Columbus, S. C., and seven grand children.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Welter home at 1:30 and concluded at the Rock Island Methodist church at 2 o'clock with the pastor Rev. Manly Mumford officiating. Interment was made in the Brooks cemetery.

The deceased was a charter member of the Good Luck Camp RNA.

Spiritism Faker And Magie Tricks Exposed In Lecture

Spiritism fakery, such as floating tables, mysterious rappings, and the tricks of magic were very plainly exposed in a unique and highly interesting lecture held at the Mokena school auditorium last Friday in charge of Rev. Mr. Elz a Lutheran pastor of Chicago who made a study of spiritism and magic during his theological seminary days in St. Louis. He had a special table on the platform such as used by spiritualist mediums. The table had curved feet so arranged that the tip of a shoe can be inserted and the table raised and made to appear to float in a semi-darkened room. A heavy signet ring is also used and catches on the table top on a projection and has the appearance of the table adhering to a person's hands when placed on the table top.

Rev. Mr. Elz further exposed in a graphic manner the fake claims of communication with the dead and of mysterious rappings. He gave a detailed account of how two young New England girls started the spiritism idea and capitalized on their fake stunts. The speaker showed how gullible people still fall for the so-called "mysterious stuff."

He performed a number of magic tricks and then dissected the trick, showing how simple it all was, but that the hand is quicker than the eye, hence the mystery surrounding the magician.

The lecture was a real treat and those missing hearing and seeing it, certainly lost out on a very educational program and interesting evening.

Mokena School Closes Due To Scarlet Fever Cases

With seven cases of scarlet fever reported to the Mokena Board of Health the local school board has issued orders to close the Mokena public school until Monday morning of next week, unless development of more cases by that time would make it imperative to close the school for a longer period. The action of the school board is a precautionary measure. The school house will be fumigated before school calls again. Cases reported thus far are said to be of a mild form.

Erect Inside Riding Arena For The Winter Weather

The riding academy operated by Henry Kimmel & Sons in Orland township is proving so popular that the demand for horse back riding has made it necessary to erect an inside riding arena to be used in winter or stormy weather.

According to the demand for this ever increasing sport, a $30,000 inside arena is now under construction. The new building is 200 feet long, 90 feet wide and 32 feet high. The floor is of tan bark. The lumber for the building was bought right at the lumber mills in South Carolina and shipped to Tinley Park on the Rock Island railroad from where it has been hauled by truck to the Klein farm on which the new arena is located.

Carpenters are rushing work on the new structure as fast as the weather conditions will permit.

Riding classes are out every Sunday and week ends as well as holidays from Morgan Park, Beverly Hills and Chicago.

Mokena M. E. 70th Anniversary Very Inspiring

The special services commemorating the observance of the 70th anniversary of the Mokena M. E. congregation and church held last Sunday were well attended. Congratulatory messages from the St. John Evangelical church board and the pastor, Rev. Theodore Haebele, from three former pastors of the M. E. church, Rev. Glen Beatty, Rev. Mr. Sandall and Rev. Mr. Mangus, were read by Rev. Chas. Knight, present pastor.

At the evening service Dr. Leseman of the Chicago National Training school at Evanston and former pastor of the Orland Park M. E. was the speaker. He delivered a very stirring address in which he pointed out what the church has stood for during the past 70 years in the life of the community.

A number of new members of the church were enrolled at the morning service.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. SYNOPSIS

Joyce Sewell, on the eve of her twentieth birthday, rebels at her lot, dependent on her detested stepmother, Irma, and full of tragic memories of her mother's murder twelve years before and her father's death six months ago. Irma calls in Helm Blackadder, an admirer, to help her persuade Joyce to marry rich, young Michael Kirkpatrick. Mike, sent up to Joyce by Irma and Blackadder, demands a showdown on his proposal and is rejected. Reading her father's papers, Joyce realizes that La Barranca, a Mexican hacienda which her father had owned, legally belongs to her. Later, she receives a letter enclosing a warrant on the United States Treasury for $10,000 compensation for her mother's murder at La Barranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley, a banker and only remaining friend of her father's. She confides that she wants to make a secret journey to Mexico. Bradley arranges all details for her. She departs by plane undetected. Dirk Van Suttart, second secretary of the American embassy in Mexico City, gives Joyce a chilly reception and she loses her temper. She finds a Mexican woman lawyer, Margarida Fonseca, who takes her to General Onelia, right-hand man to the Mexican minister of war.

"What's it got to do with me?" "Exercise your memory, General," said Margarida. "Who confiscated La Barranca? Who holds it now?"

"Dorado!" he cried.

"Exactly."

"What do you suggest?"

"General Dorado says he merely seized abandoned property. His tenure is based on salvage. My suggestion is that you arrange to have him abandon the hacienda in his turn."

"Nothing easier. I'll have him shot the next time he shows his face in town. I've been wanting to do it for years."

"I'm afraid I've come at your siesta hour. Naturally General Dorado must not be killed before the abandoned hacienda is definitely in possession of the rightful owner."

"Ah!" exclaimed Onelia.

"If General Dorado, who now holds La Barranca, should be killed—even if he should die a natural death—his heirs would inherit. They would have as good a case as he has now and our work would be all to do over again."

"Who wants the place? Not I."

Margarida looked at him steadfastly. "I wonder if you can see a picture if I hold it up before your eyes?" she inquired.

"Try me," said Onelia testily.

"Here's the picture, General, and that you're not to appear in it at all goes without saying. Suppose some of your trustiest men attend to the eviction of Dorado without killing him—simply drive him and his following out and chase them into the hills. Simultaneously your men plant the girl and leave her. The incident gets in the papers, here and across the border. The girl is young, beautiful, has perfect title as titles go and the courage of a bobcat to back it with. Do you begin to see anything?"

"Of course I see her getting herself killed, and so do you."

"Probably; but that's a mere incident—perhaps a necessary incident. It doesn't occur to you might also see the ambassador from a country we both heartily detest up to his neck in boiling water and one or two of our own cabinet officers hanging to their toppling perches with nails and teeth? I used to think you had the brains of a great rainmaker of war, but I'm beginning to doubt it."

During her long speech Onelia had been advancing toward her with a catlike tread. Now he placed a blunt finger under her chin, tipped back her head and stood looking down into her unflinching eyes.

"You've started something," he rumbled, "and we two are going to finish it. If I betray you, you can always get me shot at the market price, but if you betray me I'll have you dragged by a frightened horse." He stepped back, shrugged his shoulders and sat down. "Call in the girl."

When Joyce entered nothing could have exceeded Margarida's complacent air of accomplishment unless it was the General's urbanity.

"All you ask is to be put in possession of La Barranca. Is that correct?"

"Yes, General. I was happy there. I've never been happy since I left. The years of my childhood—"

"One moment, senorita. Our plan contemplates presenting you with the hacienda and nothing more. It is a dangerous plan—extremely dangerous to you, I mean. I don't exaggerate when I say the chances are ten to one you'll meet your mother's fate. The scheme is to filter a sufficient number of men within the walls of La Barranca, pick a quarrel at a given signal and then drive out General Dorado who now holds the property. It is essential that you be on the spot to take immediate possession—on the spot, mind you. Do you agree?"

"I do," said Joyce. "But this General Dorado—he won't be killed, will he?"

"No, child, certainly not; I'm glad to reassure you on that point," said Onelia unctuously. "The question now arises as to who shall be your personal escort."

He touched a bell and the door opened almost instantly. "Send Sergeant Buenaventura."

The soldier who presently entered the room immediately inspired Joyce with confidence. Loyalty was written in every line of his face.

"Sit down, Pancho," said Onelia; "this is a social gathering. Besides, you are now commencing a month's furlough on full pay, accompanied by a detail of eighteen men. Never by any chance are you to report to me what happens during your absence. It won't be necessary since I am about to tell you what you will do with every minute of your time."

He proceeded to give instructions so broad yet so complete to the last detail that Joyce was moved to admiration. "Understand, Pancho," he concluded, "the shot that kills General Dorado will surely kill you. Maim him if you like, but don't kill him."

"It is understood, mi General. When do we start?"

"Today, if you like," said Joyce. "If that's impossible, then tomorrow."

"It will take three days at least to place my men," he stated. "They must be sent singly and in advance."

"Attend to it at once," ordered Onelia. "As for you, hold yourself in readiness and see you have the sort of car which will attract least attention. You may go." As Sergeant Buenaventura left the room the general turned to Margarida.

"We have overlooked an important point," she said. "It is vital Dorado should be in residence; otherwise we would be committing a mere trespass."

"Couldn't I instruct Pancho to wait, in that case, until Dorado returned?"

"No; we've got to find out about Dorado and there's only one sure source of information."

"Where? Who?"

"Adan Arnaldo of El Tenebroso."

"Call that a source?" exploded Onelia. "Try to make it flow!"

"That's the trouble," said Margarida; "I couldn't do it alone, neither could you. But the two of us—in casual conversation?"

"What's El Tenebroso?" asked Joyce, intrigued by their manner.

"A resort, my dear," said Margarida. "A boite, what you would call a night club."

"Oh, please let me go too," begged Joyce.

It was odd the way their heads turned toward her as though moved by identical springs and equally strange that both faces should glow through the same changes of expression. Their Latin eyes were seeing her at El Tenebroso. No girl of breeding could crash that door and keep her social standing, and whether anything happened to her or not had nothing to do with it. Of course Joyce was unaware of any such deadline, which only made it more amusing.

"It might not be a bad idea," remarked Margarida at last.

"Not at all a bad idea," agreed Onelia. "As a matter of fact, unless accompanied by both of you, I wouldn't consider for a moment going myself. I'll send my car to pick you up. Shall we say at midnight?"

"Too early by at least an hour," said Margarida. "Make it one o'clock."

CHAPTER IV

El Tenebroso occupied a triangle at the intersection of a side street with the Calzada Manuel Villalongin. A string of private rooms comprised its longer flank but on the shorter side there was a respectable entrance leading directly to the restaurant and dance floor. The room was fan-shaped and fairly large. The orchestra was placed in the stem of the fan which put the master of ceremonies, the highly popular Adan Arnaldo, at a distinct advantage since he could watch the entire assemblage without having to worry about anything behind his back. The tables were in two banks, one at the level of the floor, the other raised and hugging the slant of the walls. The wide outer fringe of the fan was given over to stage entrance, hallway, cloak room, cooking and service departments.

General Onelia met Joyce and Margarida in the foyer. He was dressed in mufti and when Margarida, divesting herself of an ultralike overcoat, displayed a dark tailored suit, Joyce felt a qualm as to her own lovely semi-evening dress. But immediately her attention was seized by something else; at a murmured request from the check-room girl two men were condescending to park their guns with their hats. Margarida cast a hurried and curious glance at Joyce's face but found she need not worry—

Joyce was given a seat with her back to the wall. Sensing the concentrated stare upon her she was troubled and looked around anxiously. It must be her clothes. But to her relief she saw a few people on the dance floor in evening dress and then discovered a party of men against the opposite wall, all of whom were togged out in the full regalia of tails and white ties. She wondered about them, perceiving at once they were onlookers rather than participants. Evidently they had come to watch the fun, perhaps in an effort to forget the boredom of some diplomatic function. At the thought she examined them more carefully and suddenly found herself gazing at long range into the eyes of Dirk Van Suttart. She looked away at once, making no sign of recognition, but not before she had caught the rapid change of expression in his face. In an instant it had passed from surprise to wonder and from wonder to dismay tinged with aversion. He was profoundly shocked.

A flush of anger stained her cheeks but at that moment Adan Arnaldo came to Onelia's table to do homage to authority. He was a handsome young man and lacked the sleek look which usually distinguishes the master of ceremonies of such a boue as El Tenebroso. His manner, as he greeted Margarida whom he knew, declared him a substantial partner as well. Acknowledging an introduction to Joyce, he took her hand but without removing his eyes from the general's face.

"Well, Adan," said the general, "I don't have to ask you how things are going. Jam-packed as usual."

"Not so bad," admitted Arnaldo.

"The genius of this place," remarked Margarida, "consists in its diversity. There's one clientele at midnight, another at two and a third at four in the morning."

"Yes," said Arnaldo, "and if we could close at one o'clock I'd be poorer but a lot happier." He glanced at Onelia. "It's a long time since you've honored me."

"Quite true, but I'm a busy man and I've taken to going to bed. I suppose the old habits are still on the job? I haven't seen Castellito, Diego Borda, Vasconcellos, General Dorado or Panchito Iroyon since I came here last. That about covers the list, doesn't it?"

"General," said Arnaldo laughingly, "I compliment you on your memory."

"So? How could I forget any of that flock of flamingos?"

"No, no, not that," corrected Arnaldo. "You remembered not to mention a single one of the dead!"

Margarida laughed. "You're worried, Adan. Who's on the rampage nowadays? Are you expecting Dorado or is it only Castellito?" Arnaldo did not answer. "Tell me," she persisted. "Who is the cause tonight of that little crease of worry on your brow?"

"General Onelia," said Arnaldo as he rose to resume his duties.

Onelia scowled at the ambiguous distinction. Compliment, insult, threat or warning—he could take his choice. He sat in a moody silence, paying no attention to his guests. Smoldering inside him was dull rage at Arnaldo. What had he meant? He knew of the long-standing Onelia-Dorado feud—everybody did. Had he guessed at once that he and Margarida were after information as to Dorado's whereabouts and plans? In spite of her hosts' neglect Joyce was not bored. She sipped her wine sparingly and let her eyes wander.

Abruptly she sensed Onelia had gone tense in every muscle and following the direction of his gaze she saw an individual in uniform, accompanied by two bodyguards, erupt from a slight commotion in the entrance hall on her left. Never before had she seen a visage so striking, so individual, so different from the ordinary conception of a human face. Jet-black hair, close-cropped, came down in a sharp peak to within an inch of heavy eyebrows and where cheekbones should have protruded there were indentations, causing the massive blue-black jaw, divided midway by the gash of full red lips, to appear to slant outward. Feeling her eyes upon him the man stopped, stared, smiled and saluted gaily. He was drunk and as he staggered toward the table hurriedly being placed for him at the edge of the dance floor, Arnaldo darted forward, apparently to greet him. But he took up his stand in a direct line between Onelia and the new arrival.

Joyce leaned toward Margarida. "Who is that man," she whispered, "the officer who just came in?"

"General Dorado," murmured Margarida almost inaudibly.

Arnaldo, chatting cheerfully with Dorado, took out a cigarette and tapped it on his wrist. At the third tap the orchestra began to pack up its instruments and one of the four tiers of lights went out. Adan did his best to hold the attention of the recent arrival but when a second bank of lights was extinguished Dorado awoke to realization of what was intended. An odd hush fell on the room, accompanied by an electric air of expectancy. It was real, something even the uninitiated could feel, and Joyce's knees began to tremble from excitement. Her evening bag slipped from her lap. She leaned over quickly to pick it up and to her consternation caught the glint of a service revolver clapped against Onelia's thigh. Her first impression was that it was quite still but as she rose she realized its muzzle had been moving slowly upward.

Then she heard Margarida whisper to him hoarsely: "Don't be a fool or you'll spoil everything. Leave it to Adan and nothing will happen—nothing!"

At that instant Dorado raised his own gun aloft, butt end down, and crashed it on the table so violently that plates, knives and forks went flying. "Musical!" he roared. He pointed uncertainly at Joyce with a wagging forefinger, then waved it to include every woman in the room. "Musical!"

Domestication of Horse Is Traced Back Additional Thousand Years to 3000 B. C.

The history of the domestication of the horse has recently been traced back an additional thousand years, says Field Museum News, Chicago. Previously it had been thought that the horse was introduced into Babylonia by the Kassites during the early portion of the second millennium B. C. However, the Early Dynastic I (circa 3000-2800 B. C.) tombs at Kish, excavated by the Field Museum-Oxford university joint expedition to Mesopotamia, yielded animal bones some of which have now been identified by Prof. Wolfgang Amschler, of the College of Agriculture, Vienna, as those of the domesticated horse (equus caballus). These horses were larger than the Arabian horse of today, standing 15 hands 3 inches at the withers.

These skeletal remains of horses were found hitched to chariots as the animals had fallen, after being slaughtered in the tombs of their masters to provide transportation in the afterworld. The bronze harness trappings and portions of the chariots were well preserved, and it is possible to reconstruct the pictures from scenes on seals and plaques found at Kish and other sites.

Thus far, no Sumerian word for horse is recognizable, and it was thought that only the donkey was referred to in texts of this period. Now, with the realization that the horse was used at that time, it may be possible to identify some descriptive form of ass with the word for horse, as was done in Old Babylonia where the horse is known as the "ass from the mountains." The earliest Egyptian records show the Hyksos (circa 1700 B. C.)—the "Shepherd Kings"—brought the horse into the Nile valley.

Founded Benedictine Order

The Benedictine order was founded by St. Benedict about 529. It was at first intended to be only a philosophy of life, but within its first century the order was formed. The Benedictines, famous for their manufacture of a liqueur, were the saviors of Christian art in western Europe. At St. Ottilien, says the Digest, their vows of industry have taken them from crude handwork to highly mechanized production.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward signs that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tune up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife! Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Home Heating Hints By John Barclay Heating Expert

Keep Air Out of Steam and Hot Water Radiators So Heat Can Circulate Freely

FREQUENTLY I get complaints from home-owners about failure of steam or hot water heating systems to keep radiators completely hot.

This condition is often due to air being in the coils of the radiator. This air must be released before the coils can fill with steam. This usually is simple, being remedied by automatic air valves. If your radiator has such valves and the radiators remain air-bound, unscrew the little plug at the top of the valve, tightening the plug again when all the air escapes from the valves. Putting the vent valves for a few hours in a container of kerosene also helps to eliminate the air.

However, if neither of these operations corrects the trouble—or should the coils fill with water—it would be a good policy to have an expert check the valves and remedy the difficulty.

It is possible also for hot water radiators to become air-choked. To overcome this, open the air valves once in awhile with a valve key and leave them open until water starts flowing from them. Be sure to have something handy in which to catch the water when the valves are opened.

Quality of Hope

Hope quickens all the still parts of life, and keeps the mind awake in her most remiss and indolent hours. It gives habitual serenity and good humor. It is a kind of vital heat in the soul, that cheers and gladdens her, when she does not attend to it. It makes pain easy and labor pleasant.—Addison.

Perfect Virtues

Industry, economy, honesty and kindness form a quartette of virtues that will never be improved upon.—James Oliver.

C. A. Hughes
New Cook County
Farm Adviser

Mr. C. A. Hughes, former farm adviser in Monroe County, Illinois, close to St. Louis, has accepted the position as farm adviser for the Cook County Farm Bureau to succeed Mr. O. G. Barrett and will take up his new work in Cook
County on January 1st.

Native of Corn Belt
Mr. Hughes was reared on a corn belt farm near Mattoon, Ill., was graduated from the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, in 1914, and spent the following two years in farm cost studies and agricultural extension schools.

In 1916, he became county agent in Illinois known as farm adviser, in Monroe County, West Virginia, high in the Appalachian mountains.

"For two years, I rode an old gray horse up and down the valleys of this county and carried my extra socks, bulletins, and soil tester in saddle pockets," states Mr. Hughes.
After a term of service in the South, Mr. Hughes worked in the Shenandoah Valley, and after five years of apprenticeship, which is a requirement in Illinois, he returned to this state. Seven years were spent in Illinois in Menard County, where special attention was given live stock marketing associations.

Twelve Years in Monroe County
The last twelve years were spent in Monroe County, Illinois, suburban to the St. Louis metropolitan area.
During this time boys' and girls' 4-H clubs were developed, visual instruction in rural community meetings promoted, and the first farmers' cooperative seed processing project developed, which is being widely copied. Other extension projects
Mr. Hughes has promoted have been rural electrification, producers' cooperatives, soil improvement, young rural people's organizations, and hybrid seed corn. A film strip on "Hybrid Seed Corn" prepared by Mr. Hughes recently has been adopted by the producing company as their official copy and is being widely distributed.

Twice State Advisers' President

Farm Adviser Hughes has been twice elected president of the Illinois Advisers' Association—the only adviser twice elected to that office.

Mr. Hughes Well Recommended

Mr. Hughes comes to Cook county with highest recommendations and qualifications and the members of Cook County Farm Bureau look forward to a successful period of service.

PTA NOTES

The Mokena PTA met in the school auditorium Tuesday Nov. 23. At the last meeting "Questions on Friendliness" were given to several members who were to give their views on the subject at this meeting. Mrs. Wm. Lowe and Mrs. Ira Gardner gave very interesting answers to the questions.

The Girls Glee Club entertained with three delightful songs. We hope to hear more of them.

Mrs. A. Schoop gave a reading on "Nature Study with Children."

Following the entertainment refreshments were served.

Plans are being made for a Christmas party on December 21. There will be music and plays by the school children and the Mokena school band will also play.

Miss Snure's room received the trophy for this month.

Joseph and Charlotte, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gee are ill in their home with scarlet fever.

Mrs. John Wannemacher entertained in her home December 1st, in honor of the 13th birthday of Chas. Mau. A group of neighboring children were the guests. Games were played and refreshments were served, chief of which was a lovely birthday cake.

Mrs. Rene Guindon entertained last Saturday afternoon in her home in honor of the 11th birthday of her daughter, Lois. Games were played by the friends and school mates of Lois who were the guests. Refreshments were served and a fine time was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Neithammer entertained a group of small children and relatives Sunday in their home in honor of the fourth birthday of their daughter, Audrey. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Out of town guests were Audrey's grandfather and Aunt, Wm. Neithammer and Mrs. Ruth Schneider of Chicago.

Mrs. Robt. Bechstein entertained the 500 club in her home last Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Pete Mancke and Mrs. Aug. Hauck visited in the home of their niece, Mrs. Arthur Kreis and family in Joliet last Saturday.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

Primary Room News
The Primary room is practicing for the Christmas program. This room is very nicely decorated this month. Above the blackboard in the front, is a panel showing the shepherds and the Wise Men traveling toward the Star over the city of Bethlehem. The children have drawn pictures of themselves and pictures to illustrate good and bad manners.

Intermediate Room
This room is also attractively decorated for Christmas. Above the blackboard in the front is the scene of Bethlehem and the Shepherds and Wise Men. This work was all done by the pupils. In the back of the room, are posters and drawings. Tall candles decorate the windows and doors. The pupils have started work on the Christmas program.

Jr. High Room
Christmas decorations are making our room very cheerful. This room also has some fine maps showing the campaigns of the Civil war, on display.

High School Room
The Freshmen English class has begun the study of Scott's, "Lady of the Lake." As one of their special assignments, they will draw maps of the region in which the story occurred. The Sophomore English class is studying Shakespeare's, "Julius Caesar." The geography class is studying oceans at the present time. They are using their text book merely as an outline guide and are finding additional material in various reference works.

The basketball boys brought home made candy to school Friday and sold it at noon. The proceeds of the sale are to help pay the expenses of transportation to out-of-town games.

Sport News

The Mokena school teams split a double bill with the Frankfort teams Friday night. Mokena Grades lost 23 to 7. The High school won 26 to 16. The Frankfort teams will play a return game in Mokena some time in January.

Administrative Comment

The Garden Club will hold a special meeting in the home of Mrs. J. Balaz December 15 at 7 p. m. for the purpose of assembling toys, cards, games, and anything that a child will be glad to have at Christmas time. Any one who is not a Garden Club member but who has articles that they would like to contribute to this worthy cause can bring them to Mrs. Balaz's home or notify any of the members who will call for their gifts. These are all to be sent to the poor children in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lehnert and son Edwin and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eggert attended the wedding dance of Mr. Lehnert's nephew, Myron Lehnert who was married to Miss Mable Wehrmann of Beecher Saturday afternoon. The dance was held in the Beecher Town hall.

The Parishioners of St. Mary's Catholic church and their pastor, the Rev. Father Roman, wish to thank all who attended their card and bunco party Tuesday night. We would enjoy seeing them at our parties in the future and we assure you that the committees will always strive to make your evening an enjoyable one.

We wish to thank all who donated articles, their efforts and time toward the success of the party.

The goose dinner was awarded to M. S. Hammel of Joliet and the home made quilt to Mrs. Elmer Sipple. Thanks to those who made donations to these awards.

THE COMMITTEE.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaagen

Mrs. Harry Balchowsky received sad news of the death of her aunt, Mrs. J. Zitenfeld in Chicago. She had been in poor health for a year.

Richard Lambrecht, Chas. and Margaret Caley, Faye, June and Betty Lou Oetter and Adeline Jarchow took part in a piano recital given by pupils of Mrs. G. Hoermann at Manhattan, Ill., last Thursday.

Margaret Caley underwent an operation for appendicitis in Silver Cross hospital Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mark are the proud parents of a daughter born December 6 in Silver Cross hospital.

Mrs. Sell of Plymouth, Nebraska spent Friday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Minger. She left for her home on Tuesday after visiting relatives and friends here for some time.

Mr. Christ Heisner, who resides in Gary, called on home town friends for a few days.

The Sunday School Teachers of the St. Peter Evangelical church held their regular meeting on Wednesday of last week. The following officers were elected for next year: President, Mrs. William Hansen; Vice-President, Miss Isabelle Harman; Secretary, Mrs. Alfred Zechlin and treasurer, Miss Bernice Weichbrodt.

The Amite Sewing Club will hold their Christmas Party in the home of Mrs. Fred Heusner and not at Mrs. George Heisner's home as previously stated.

The Frankfort grade and high school basketball teams were defeated by the Mokena team on Friday, December 3rd. The Young Men's team of Frankfort lost also to a Joliet team. Well boys, better luck the next time.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all relatives, friends and neighbors for kindness and sympathy shown us in our bereavement. We also thank the singers, those who sent floral offerings, Rev. G. S. Gerhold for his comforting words and those who donated the use of their automobiles.

MRS. JOHN H. BOBZIN AND FAMILY.

NEW LENOX

By Dolores Walsh

The Catholic Youth Organization of St. Jude's church met Monday night at their regular monthly meeting in the home of Miss Lillian Carey on Cedar Road.

Rev. Father Roman led in prayer. Miss Carey, the retiring president, presided at the business session. Miss Doris Schneider, retiring secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. Miss Dolores Walsh gave a final report on the returns of the recent minstrel show. A treasurer's report was given by Jack Lennen, retiring treasurer.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held Thursday night, December 30th at the Schneider home southwest of town with the following committee in charge: Eleanor McGuire, Dolores Walsh, Robert Reiter and Francis Berenz.

A group of the CYO members including Father Roman, planned to motor to Manhattan Friday night to attend the St. Joseph Catholic church minstrel.

Debating has become quite the thing among CYO members and the next monthly meeting will be the scene of their first big debate, the topic chosen being: "Capital Punishment" with captains and sides as follows: Captain Doris Schneider; Leona Eish, Dolores Walsh, Emily Cruise, Eleanor McGuire, and Lillian Carey; all preparing for the regative side, while Jack Lennen, Captain of a group of boys, Robert, Herold and George Reiter, Albert Eich and Francis Berenz, holding the affirmative side.

Following the meeting airplane (crash) bunco was in play at three tables and prizes were awarded to Leona Eich and Harold Reiter. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Carey and Mrs. Russell Mangun. Miss Marie Champraux of Joliet was a guest of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carlson of Rockford visited here with the Chas. Johnson and Thomas Carey families Thursday.

Miss Phyllis Wilson of McIntosh subdivision spent the past week end in Rochelle, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Latz announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Bessie to Lawrence Surges, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Surges. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Eleanor McGuire has returned to her home after spending the past few days with Miss Dolores Walsh.

Jack Lennen who has been confined to his home the past few weeks with a broken leg is able to be out again.

Mrs. Joseph Novak and infant daughter, Judith Ann, returned home Saturday from Silver Cross.

Mrs. B. Hyde of Spring Lake, Michigan visited with Mrs. Peter Sinclair Sunday. Mrs. Hyde is on her way to California.

Miss Ramona Fink spent the week end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fink.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake McGuire and family have moved from the Spangler farm into the home vacated by the Eugene Anderson family in Homer township.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seivert entertained their pinocle club at their home Saturday night. Prizes went to Mrs. Louis Hoffman and Frank Vally, Mrs. Laura Carlson and Ray Osmus. A traveling prize went to Louis Hoffman. Refreshments were served following the games. Mr. and Mrs. Will Drake will entertain again in two weeks.

Mrs. Rolland Woodcock is seriously ill in the Brannon Memorial hospital in Manhattan.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Batson and son Mark of Maywood were Sunday guests of the Charles Smith and Ceward Batson families.

Dolores Bruns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bruns is quarantined for scarlet fever.

The New Lenox Band Association met Monday night at the school auditorium. Plans were made for a card party to be held sometime in January. The food sale held last Saturday was a huge success.

Will Pester, accompanied Mrs. Jessie Pester and Mrs. Anna Parsons last Sunday on a trip to Cal.

In the two basketball games played this last week, the New Lenox Flashes Girls won and lost one. On Thursday night they won from Mokena Girls at Mokena by a score of 17 to 14 and lost to Tinley Park girls, 17 to 6 Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. John Warning entertained members of the B. Square club on Wednesday afternoon. Prizes were awarded for airplane bunco to Mrs. Esther Engee, Mrs. Olive Frick and Mrs. Octavia Pugh. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Edna Collatz will entertain again next week.

The New Lenox Woman's Club will hold their December meeting and Christmas party in the home of Mrs. Homer Kemp. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon with the program and business meeting following.

lowing. Mrs. Adeline Francis is program chairman.

TWO NEW FORD V-8 CARS FOR 1938

THE DE LUXE

85 HORSEPOWER

DE LUXE FORD V-8... 112" wheelbase; 85-horsepower engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Center-Poise Ride; All-steel body; Mohair or Broadcloth upholstery; Walnut-finished trim; Twin horns, tail lights, sun visors; Clock; 600" black tires, white side-walls are extra; 8 body types; 6 colors.

THE STANDARD

60 OR 85 HORSEPOWER

STANDARD FORD V-8... 112" wheelbase; 85 or 60 horsepower engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Center-Poise Ride; All-steel body; Broadcloth or Mohair upholstery, Mohair extra in '60"; Mahogany-finished trim; One tail light, sun visor; Twin horns; 3 body types; 3 colors.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments all around.

De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors—with a choice of engine sizes—85 or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost. With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly.

Due to the storm Friday evening the attendance at the 3 act play "The Scarecrow Creeps" which was presented at the Homer church by a cast of young people from Plainfield, was small but those who did attend felt amply repaid for braving the storm as the play was excellent and was well presented by the entire cast.

The Orland Park Legionnaires will sponsor a dance at the Goodings grove hall on Saturday night, Dec. eleventh.

Thursday, the Wayside Workers circle of Kings, daughters enjoyed an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Ott in Lockport. The day was spent in playing games and contests, prepared by Mrs. Fred Trask and Mrs. Stuart Vanderbilt. After the luncheon a business session was held. It was voted to send Christmas gifts to all inmates of the Salem Old Peoples home in Joliet, and also a handkerchief shower to the Orphans at the Swedish Lutheran home. Another pleasant feature of the day was an exchange of Christmas gifts. The January meeting of the circle will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Trask in Lockport.

T. J. O'Leary has been on the sick list the past week.

Chas. Greenberg who has been residing at the Blodgett home has returned to his home in Wheatland.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Anderson and daughter have moved their household goods to their new home in Joliet.

Palos Park

Hi Folks:

The wheel of fortune spins round and round and where she stops no one knows. But the people listed here are not fortunate because they were caught off guard.

The first unlucky person is Harold Paulon. He is rumored to be a super excellent soda and sundae eater. He says that he has recently eaten four fifteen-cent sundaes all in a row. We can believe that but can't believe that he had 60 cents in a lump sum.

Does anyone know the boy that picks up a red-head, a blonde, and a brunette from Morgan Park high school and takes them out to lunch every day?

Agnes LaBine reads her French with one finger on the vocabulary. Whatta brain.

To stir softly and flutter gaily is the motto used by Charlene Tamlyn as she lays out her pattern in sewing.

Will some one please tell me the name of that boy, sporting that 1938 Nash, who takes Alice Crawford out every Saturday and Sunday evening?

Shirley Haack is keeping that girlish figure by eating cake and ice cream every day for lunch.

The dentist told a young man that it would cost him $75 for a bridge instead of so many fillings, but he insisted on having a culvert put in instead.

When a policeman asked Leroy McCabe why he was pick pocketing from a sleeping man's pocket, he answered: "I was walking about the park when I had a dizzy spell — I grabbed for a bench—but my hand slipped and went into the sleeper's pocket."

When Anna Mae Good was asked to give the secret of her slim figure, she said: "Every morning I throw a bag of confetti on the floor and then stoop down and pick up each disk separately."

John Warren didn't have to turn a corner the other morning, he slid around.

Bill Gootch's enthusiasm for football games is due to the feminine cheer leaders. He prefers green-eyed brunettes but doesn't bar red-heads. By playing the "Kazoo" and the "Comb" he sends unwanted guests home early. Now is that nice?

I bet you didn't know that Bob DeNova's hobby is hitch-hiking and Howard Bell's hobby is eating and sleeping.

Thomas Crawford's smile is as contagious as a yarn.

An ambitious news reporter Gets news in this order:

Lucille Willis learned to drive Lo and behold! She's still alive.

Louise Kuipers rises late Gets to school round about eight.

Jean Weed proud of her letter Wears it often on her sweater.

Victor Shultz tells the girls He uses a wash board to get his curls.

Rosemary Barnes has a big dimple Sleeps on a collar button—very simple.

John Simmer's big brown eyes Have all the girls full of sighs.

The death of a silk stocking has long run and I'll be dead from the long run if any of you G-men or women ever catch me looking thru key-holes.

Dina Smead claims her secret ambition is to skate on a soapy floor with two scrub brushes tied to her feet.

1938 Ford V-8 Standard Tudor Sedan

MOST popular of all the Ford V-8 body types is the standard Tudor sedan, shown above. A longer hood, more sweeping lines and newly-designed front end, grille, louvers, fenders and hubcaps are featured. The car is available either with 85 horsepower or 60 horsepower V-8 engine. Interiors are attractively appointed. The front seat is full width. The seat back is divided. The sections are hinged diagonally and swing inward as they are tipped forward so as to leave a wide passageway on either side for entrance to the rear seat. Like all Ford body types the Tudor sedan has a large built-in luggage compartment. The standard cars are engineered for owners who demand the maximum of economy in first cost and operating cost.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NEWS

Since the Thanksgiving vacation students have returned to work hard in preparation for their six weeks tests which they will write on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The girls in Art class are making their own Christmas cards to send to their friends and relatives. They are planning to decorate the small table in our Art corner the way they think a table should look for a Christmas party.

English 2 class is reading the novel "Silas Marner" by Geo. Elliot.

English 1 class members are "trying their pens" at writing simple narratives based on their own experiences. Monday, however, they wrote some imaginative experiences which proved much more thrilling than the everyday accounts. For instance, Walter Romboch imagined himself facing a firing squad in Spain.

The Manual training class is busy making their shields upon which they will mount aluminum Lincoln Heads, cast in our foundry. The shields are made of either white or red oak, walnut sycamore, maple or mahogany. Working with so many fine hard woods gives us a chance to learn the different working qualities and characteristics of the woods and the ease or difficulty which is met in working these materials to conform to our use.

Alfred Kimmel attended the International Stock Show on Friday, Dec. 3.

Norman Yunker gave a talk for the Biology class on "Trapping and Skinning Muskrats" which Norman personally does.

The Christ Lutheran church Ladies Aid will hold a bake sale in the Schmaedeke store Dec. 18. at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Fred Miller is recovering nicely from severe burns recently received when a kettle of hot grease tipped over.

The village board will hold their semi-monthly meeting Monday night December 13.

The Orland Park RNA will hold a Christmas party and an election of officers in the Creer hall Dec. 16.

Young Men's Forum Will Sponsor Program

The Young Men's Educational Forum will sponsor a program, in the Joliet high school, Monday evening December 15 at 7:30 o'clock in the Music Room. They will present at this time the Pro and Con of "How Does The Undistributed Surplus Effect Business?" No admission will be charged.

Mr. A. C. Fairfield, president of the Lions Club will be the Moderator. Ralph C. Murphy, Joliet Attorney, presents, The Law Stated. The Pro Speaker is E. Douglass. Engineering Faculty, Joliet Junior College and the Con Speaker, will be J. Dingle, Income Tax Consultant.

How does the Undivided Surplus Tax effect present business conditions? An effort to answer this question, which is in the minds of laborer, business man, manufacturer and the "man on the street", will be made on Monday evening in the above stated place and hour.

The Young Men's Educational Forum, which is sponsoring this program, has expended considerable effort in obtaining the most qualified speakers and was rewarded in securing Mr. Earl Douglass of the Joliet Junior College, faculty who will speak from the liberal point of view. Mr. J. Dingle, Income Tax Consultant, will carry the conservative view point, and Mr. Ralph C. Murphy, a local attorney, will explain the law preparatory to the speeches by Mr. Douglass and Mr. Dingle. Mr. A.C. Fairfield, president of the Lions Club, will act in the capacity of Moderator.

This program is the first sponsored by the Young Men's Educational Forum, a recently organized group of young men whose purpose is to study the social and problems of our day, and to promote civic and national pride as well as understanding and good fellowship with all people. This organization desires to enroll its members all forward minded young men in Joliet and the surrounding communities, in order that programs such as the coming one on December 13th can be given with routine regularity.

The Need For Confidence

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During recent weeks the nation has been encouraged by evidences of various new approaches to practical co-operation between Government and the great army of American producers.

From both Capitol Hill and the White House have come reports indicating that practical means will be sought to stem what threatens to become an ebb-tide of recovery.

They include the removal of barriers placed, during recent years, in the way of productive activity; the encouragement of opportunities for re-employment in wide-spread construction programs, and a shift of official emphasis from odd economic experiments to effective methods of restoring public confidence.

All are important. But it is for the restoration of public confidence that America now looks hopefully to Congress.

"If the period of prosperity could be expressed in a single word," once said a famous statesman, "that word would be 'confidence'."

"Skill and confidence," pronounced another, "are an unconquered army."

In the hands and the knowledge of her workers—whether in field, or store or factory—America has the skill. Re-establish the nation-wide assurance which was once our greatest asset, by releasing our skill and energy, and the battle for sound recovery is won.

America looks to Congress to restore that confidence.

John C. Fisher, sixty-seven years old, editor and publisher of the Cairo Evening Citizen, died of paralysis.

J. N. Crebs, hotel man, died in his apartment at Hotel Clark at Princeton.

Gerald R. Wallick of Sterling was killed in the head-on collision of his automobile and a truck on a hill near Grand Chain.

James O'Neal, fifty-seven years old, former mayor of Fairfield, is dead. He was an attorney and a prominent Democrat. His widow and two daughters survive.

The Bloomington trades and labor assembly opposed "any and all WPA projects" as well as the pending maximum hour and minimum wage bill.

Her clothing set afire by a stove, Mrs. Rose Zbysinski, fifty-two, was burned to death in her home in North Chicago. Her husband was burned trying to save her.

Frank Schreiber, forty years old of Glen Ellyn, district manager of the Jewel Tea company, was found dead in his automobile. Police said a rubber hose from the exhaust pipe led into the car.

Eighty defendants charged with maintaining and operating gambling devices were assessed fines and costs aggregating $9,902.08 in County court at Rock Island by Judge John W. Heberling.

Clyde Wagner of Edwardsville, twenty-one-year-old odd-jobs man, changed his plea from not guilty to one of guilty, waived trial by a jury, and was sentenced to 100 years in prison for the murder of Addis Miller, Alton policeman.

A drive to eliminate traffic-law violators in Canton netted State's Attorney Sherman Deutch and S. E. Gustine, chairman of the Fulton county board of supervisors. In police court, after admitting their violations, both paid $1 fines.

Dr. C. C. Sloan of Moline died of heart disease. He was a founder of the city's airport. Dr. Sloan, who was sixty years old, held a pilot's license for fifteen years. He was among the early medical examiners appointed by the Department of Commerce.

The state department of mines and minerals has reported that Illinois October coal production increased more than 500,000 tons over the figure for September. James McSherry, department director, said a total of 147 mines worked during the month and produced 4,651,359 tons.

Sinnissippi Farm, one of the show places of Illinois, has been incorporated by its present owners, the four children of former Governor Lowden. A charter was issued in Springfield. The farm, on the Rock river near Oregon, was purchased by former Governor and Mrs. Lowden thirty-five years ago.

Clarence D. Butzer, fifty years old, of Hillsdale, former University of Illinois football player, suffered the loss of his left leg in a corn picker near Sterling. Butzer played guard on the Illini eleven in 1908, 1909, and 1910. He was captain of the unbeaten team of 1910, which won Illinois' first Big Ten championship.

A $135,000 fire destroyed the Kenway Venetian Blind company and damaged stock of the Gross Galesburg Overall plant in Galesburg. Blinds valued at $20,000 were lost. Heat from the burning Kenway building set off the sprinkler system in the Gross factory and ruined an estimated $100,000 of overall stock. It was partially covered by insurance.

Charles Flynn, fifty-five-year-old farmer, was taken to the Menard penitentiary to serve a seventeen-year sentence for the poison slaying of Harvey Hoffe, a neighbor, nearly seven years ago. Mrs. Alva Hoffe Flynn, Flynn's wife and Hoffe's widow, is serving a ninety-nine-year sentence in the Dwight reformatory for her part in the killing. Flynn pleaded guilty at Fairfield.

Carter Jenkins of Des Plaines, for four and one-half years assistant regional officer in charge of federal participation in construction of state parks, was named chief engineer of the state division of waterways by F. Lynden Smith, director of public works. Smith said that Dr. Walter M. Smith, who has been water ways engineer, will have the title of consulting engineer.

Sixty-four years' growth of the University of Illinois Young Men's Christian association was marked when Dr. John R. Mott, world head of the Y. M. C. A Christmas
Reconciliation

MARY and John had quarreled—just before Christmas, too. The Christmas candy had burned, and then, in the excitement, each had blamed the other, making cruel retorts, until Mary fled to her bedroom in tears and John stalked off in the snowy night.

The Christmas candle beamed a welcome from the window as John started around the block again. He was cold, and sorry, but he mustn't go in too soon.

The tree, the holly, their little girl asleep in her crib and dreaming of Santa Claus—all were a mockery. Mary went into the living room and snapped on the radio, looking for a jazz band and forgetfulness. Instead there came the strains of "Silent Night"—"peace on earth, good will to men."—"God bless us, every one!"—"may nothing you dismay." Wasn't there anything on except Christmas programs? A click brought back the silence.

She opened the front door. Next time she would ask John to come in. Tell him she was sorry. Now that she stopped to think, she knew that he was sorry, too. Why let a few excited words that neither of them meant spoil their Christmas?

But John did not come. It was too cold to stand at the door any longer, but she sat at the window, with the curtain drawn aside, watching for him. An hour went by.

When at last she saw him coming the relief almost choked her. He was striding rapidly, carrying something in his arms. She opened the door for him and he handed his burden to her.

"Here, Mary, hold him. Careful, now. His leg's hurt. I'll get a box and we'll fix a bed."

Mary looked down at the warm bundle. It was a furry puppy. One leg was in splints. The puppy whimpered a little and licked her hand.

"But, John, where did you get him?"

"Accident. Over on Linden. Fell out of a passing car. I took him to a vet and had him fixed up. Thought he'd make a cute pet for Alice." He stopped his work and straightened up. "I'm awfully sorry, Mary. I was a fool."

"It was my fault, John." Their eyes met in perfect understanding. How silly to quarrel. The silence was a more impressive reconciliation than words. Mary broke it nervously, for fear she would cry again. "There are some clean rags in that drawer. And we ought to get him something to eat. He can have this old bowl for his dish." She worked with one hand, cuddling the puppy. "Won't Alice be surprised? And what shall we name him?"

"Ought to have some connection with Christmas eve, don't you think, How about Scrooge, or Marlow?"

"Oh, no!"

"Good King Wenceslaus?"

"Such names for a poor innocent puppy! Maybe we had better see what Alice wants to call him in the morning." She put the puppy down with a saucer of warm milk. John came and put his arm around her, and they stood close together watching their pet lap greedily.

"We ought to call him Peacemaker, honey," said John. "If it hadn't been for him, I might have still been out there in the snow."

"Oh, John!" She held him close. "Weren't we silly? I was so worried when you didn't come. If anything had happened to you I could never have forgiven myself."

"Felt pretty rotten myself. Not my idea of the best way to spend Christmas eve."

"Of course! I forgot! We have so much left to do! The tree, and Alice's doll must be unpacked, and her stocking filled. What time is it?"

He looked at his watch. "Almost midnight."

"Not really!"

He nodded, and put his watch on the table. "Here, pooch," he said, "it's bedtime for you." He lifted the puppy into its bed, and turned back to his wife. "And as for you, milady," he said, "in about ten seconds I want a kiss for Christmas, and then we're going to pitch in together and clean up this mess, and trim the tree, and maybe even chance another batch of candy. OK? Then, it's time, darling, to say Merry, Merry Christmas."

Lesson for December 12
CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—I John 1:1-7; Revelation 21:1-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.—I John 1:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Home.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Great Family.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Comradeship with Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Daily Fellowship with Christ and Christians.

Fellowship—the word is rich in meaning, even as it concerns the ordinary relationships of life. It speaks of the association of man with man in a common enterprise, a sharing of problems and of victories—a partnership. Such relationships are very real and helpful. They lead to friendships which bind the hearts of men together in noble purpose and in tender consideration.

It is, however, a long step forward when we add the prefix "Christian" to "fellowship." For by so doing we not only bring men into the most glorious partnership with each other but we do two other very important things: (1) we limit those eligible to this fellowship to those who are followers of the Lord Jesus Christ; and (2) we broaden the fellowship beyond the association of men with each other, and bring them into the circle with Christ. What a high and noble fellowship! Do you belong? Christ says, "I am the door: by me if any man enter in he shall be saved" (John 10:9).

Our Scripture selections for today are from two books of the Bible. Both speak of an eternal Christian fellowship but the first stresses its present expression in a life of holiness and the other its future of blessed communion.

I. Christian Fellowship—Now (I John 1:1-7).

The First Epistle of John presents fellowship with God as depending on three things "which form in their combination a very beautiful picture of truth . . . God is light (1:5), hence fellowship with God depends on our walking in the light. God is righteous (2:29), hence fellowship with God depends on our doing righteousness. God is love (4:7, 8), hence fellowship with God depends on our possessing and manifesting love" (James M. Gray).

Every clause and phrase of the passage before us is so full of spiritual truth that it should have our full time but we must limit ourselves to pointing out one outstanding fact; namely, that Christian fellowship is made possible because we have a Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. He it is who reveals the Father—the One in whom there is "no darkness at all" (v. 5). If we follow him we must "walk in the light as he is in the light" (v. 7). This allows for no dark corners, no crookedness in word or act, no backbiting nor evil speaking.

Let us open the hidden recesses of the heart to the light of God and put every evil thing under the "blood of Jesus Christ which cleanseth us from all sin" (v. 7).

II. Christian Fellowship—for Eternity (Rev. 21:1-7).

Our present communion with God and with one another is most precious—but how often it is marred by sin and disturbed by the wickedness that surrounds us in the world. We look forward to that day when we who are the followers of Christ shall be delivered not only from the penalty and the power of sin, but also from its very presence.

There will be "a new heaven and a new earth" from which every evil thing has been taken away, in which all has been renewed in righteousness. Then will come the glorious consummation of all things when God shall come to "dwell with them and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God" (v. 3).

That communion shall never be disturbed by the falling of any tear. There will be no mourning, no crying, no pain (v. 4). Little wonder that these words have been the comfort of God's people in their darkest hours. They are not the futile words of human solace. They come from the eternal God.

Three questions have intrigued the curiosity of man: (1) Where did I come from? (2) why am I here? and (3) where am I going? The Christian is the only one who has a satisfying solution for the problem of the origin of all things, "In the beginning God"; a reason for the existence of all things, "To me to live is Christ"; and a satisfactory consummation of all things, "And God himself shall be with them." It is a great thing to know Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord.

True Religion

True religion extends alike to the intellect and the heart. Intellect is in vain if it lead not to emotion, and emotion is vain if not enlightened by intellect; and both are vain if not guided by truth and leading to duty.—Tryon Edwards.

Values

I am told so many ill things of a man, and I see so few in him, that I begin to suspect he has a real but troublesome merit, as being likely to eclipse that of others.—Bruyere.

A Bogus Declaration

ONE day in 1930 newspaper headlines in Toronto, Canada, carried this startling declaration: "Draft of Declaration of Independence Signed by Penn, Instead of Jefferson, Is Fabulous Art Treasure Now Here." The story under those headlines stated that Mrs. Ellen Field of Stoke Poges, England, last of the lineal descendants of William Penn, had on her deathbed ordered certain fabulous heirlooms returned to America.

Among the "treasures" was a faded and blotted parchment, said to be the original draft of America's most famous document and presumably written by John Penn, first governor of Pennsylvania. One word in that headline was quite correct—"fabulous."

It was pronounced that by experts who pointed out that John Penn could not have been the author of the Declaration for the very good reason that he was a Tory and had served a term in jail for his pro-British sympathies. Moreover, the minutes of the Continental congress show that Franklin, Adams and Jefferson were members of the committee appointed to draw up the Declaration and it is a matter of historical record that Jefferson actually wrote it.

The original manuscript has disappeared (the document preserved in Washington is an engrossed copy). It was probably destroyed because it was a dangerous document to have around when the outcome of the Revolution was still in doubt. Further examination of the Toronto parchment showed that the text of it may have been a contemporary copy of the original draft. But the signatures were clearly forgeries. So the forger who hoped, perhaps, to sell his "treasure" for a large sum to the United States government was foiled.

The First Bathtub

LATE in 1917 Henry L. Mencken, "simply to have some fun in war days," as he later declared, wrote a story for the New York Evening Mail. It stated that the first American bathtub was installed on December 20, 1842, by Adam Thompson in his home in Cincinnati where he proudly displayed it to his friends at a party for men and all the guests took baths. When the news of this got about, physicians denounced the bathtub as a menace to public health. In Boston a city ordinance prohibited its use except upon medical advice. Virginia levied a $30 tax on each bathtub installation and the Philadelphia city council tried to pass an ordinance prohibiting its use between November and May, etc., etc.

All of this was written in a spirit of "good clean fun." Then, to his surprise, Mencken discovered that his "spoofing" had been taken seriously. Other writers began using the "facts" in his story. Medical men cited them as proof of the progress of public hygiene. They even appeared in standard reference works.

Finally in 1926 Mencken wrote an article which was syndicated to 30 newspapers in all parts of the country, confessing the hoax. It appeared in his sixth series of "Prejudices" under the head of "The American Public Will Swallow Anything." But despite all his efforts to prove the story a fake, it still bobs up regularly and his "facts" about the first bathtub are solemnly reprinted as an authentic item of American social history!

"Barberous Jokes"

SOON after the bobbed hair fad had spread to Germany, a number of prominent citizens of Leipzig were surprised one day to receive a notice, written in the florid official German style. It said that the women of their household must pay their "bobbed hair tax" at once. There was a rush to the city hall where clerks, puzzled at first by the descent upon them, finally convinced a group of anxious women that they had been the victims of a practical joker.

Just as puzzled, a few years later, was the secretary of the barbers' union in Chicago when he read in the papers that his union had instructed him to write a letter to Rudolph Valentino, asking him to shave off a beard which he had grown for his role in a movie. According to the story, the barbers' union had passed a resolution prohibiting the beard, on the ground that it would have a tendency to influence many young men who patterned themselves after him, to wear such facial ornaments. If they did that, it would ruin the barber business and they wanted the screen idol to "cease and desist."

After the first story had been printed, the secretary denied that he had received any such instructions. He knew nothing about the resolutions nor did he know how the story originated. Neither did anyone else. But some people shrewdly suspected that it might have been started by Harry Reichenbach, the famous press agent, who was doing publicity for Valentino at the time and who just happened to be in Chicago when the story first appeared!

Sew-Your-Own Joins Santa

DID you know, Milady, that Santa Claus and Sew-Your-Own have joined forces to make this the brightest, charmingest Christmas you've ever known?

Yes, it's a fact! And you who've tried so hard to be good (and never a little naughty) are going to be rewarded to the full. Gifts by Sew-Your-Own from Santa Claus to you. Here's what you may expect (but remember, "Do not open until Christmas").

Festive Fashion.

You're in line for personalized gifts this year, lucky lady, and what could be closer to your heart's desire than a velvet housecoat—nothing indeed (Sew-Your-Own knows every girl's weakness).

Darling and Practical.

For Miss Keep-the-Home-Beautiful we've specially designed a pair of really different aprons. One is the kind to wear when actually doing kitchen chores, the other is a dressy model—so pretty you will make a darling hostess.

For the Very Young.

If you're a very young lady you may find Gift No. 1393 or Gift Set No. 1423 packed neatly in your stocking one fine morning soon. The former, a dress plus dainty shorts, will be a peachy combination to wear to parties when you want to be "dressed up swell." The Temple Trio, a hat, scarf and muff set, was designed to put a little "Hollywood" in your Christmas.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1210 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 (full length) requires 5½ yards of 39 inch material; in medium length 5¼ yards.

Pattern 1422 is designed for sizes Small (34-36), Medium (38-40), and Large (42-44). Plain apron requires 1½ yards of 35 inch material for medium size. The dressy style requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material for medium size, plus 4 yards of machine ruffling for trimming, as pictured.

Pattern 1393 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern Set 1423 is designed for sizes Small (18 in. head size), Medium (20 in. head size), and Large (21½ in. head size). The ensemble, medium size, requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

New Pattern Book.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

REDDY FOX

by Thornton W. Burgess

BUSTER BEAR PLAYS A TRICK

BUSTER BEAR and Jumper the Hare had had their heads together. This doesn't mean that they really touched heads. Oh, my no! No, indeed! Jumper is too wise to get so close to Buster Bear as that. It means that they had made plans together. If Reddy Fox had known about those plans Reddy would certainly have kept away from that part of the Green Forest. But he didn't know about them, and so he didn't keep away from that part of the Green Forest.

You see, it was there that Jumper the Hare spent most of his time, and so it was there that Reddy was spending most of his time now, for he was bound that he would catch Jumper to pay him for making him the laughing stock of all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. At first Reddy had been afraid, very much afraid, that he might meet Buster Bear there. He had kept his eyes wide open for Buster, for, if the truth be known, he was as much afraid of Buster as Jumper was of him. But as day after day he saw nothing of Buster he grew careless. He made up his mind that Buster had gone back to the Great Woods from which he had come, and he thought of nothing but catching Jumper the Hare.

So Reddy, because he is very smart and sly, spent a great deal of time looking for the places where Jumper made his bed and for the places where he ate. Then he would hide near one of these and wait patiently for Jumper to come. But somehow Jumper always went to a place where Reddy was not hiding. The truth is, Jumper knew perfectly what Reddy was doing, and so he never went twice to the same place. That is, he never went twice very near together. If he took a nap under a big hemlock branch and then went out to get a bite to eat, he would finish his nap under another tree instead of going back to the first one. So, though Reddy often found places Jumper had just left and hid beside them patiently for Jumper to come back, it never was of the least bit of use.

Works for His Food

A bird who has learned that if he doesn't work he doesn't eat is shown here at mealtime. He is Oscar, a trained goldfinch who brings many sightseers to the bird shop in Sydney, Australia, where he literally earns his seed in the sweat of his brow. The bird's food is placed in a small truck on a runway outside the cage. When Oscar feels the pangs of hunger he hauls on a string and pulls the truck to the side of the cage where he can peck at the contents.

But after Jumper and Buster Bear had had their heads together Jumper seemed to grow careless. Yes, sir, that is the way it seemed. Reddy Fox noticed it right away and grinned wickedly. Three times he saw Jumper dozing just in front of a great fallen tree. Then for a fourth time he saw Jumper sit in the same place. By and by Jumper began to nod. Then his eyes closed in the sleepest way. Reddy grinned and licked his chops. Jumper's eyes opened, closed again, opened once more, then closed and remained closed. Reddy watched a long time before he stirred, but there was no sign from Jumper the Hare. He certainly looked to be fast, very fast, asleep.

Softly, ever so softly, Reddy Fox tiptoed forward. Jumper did not move. A few steps nearer, and still Jumper seemed fast asleep. Reddy stopped long enough to grin, a wicked, hungry grin. This time he would catch Jumper and then he would see if the other people would laugh at and make fun of him any more! Softly, softly, very, very softly he stole forward until with one great jump he would be able to land right on poor Jumper. Very, very carefully Reddy fixed his hind legs to make the spring, and then—well—then he landed right exactly where Jumper had been, but wasn't. You see, Jumper had been just pretending to be asleep, and when Reddy had jumped, he had jumped, too.

Now, Jumper had jumped right over the old tree trunk and Reddy sprang after him. But Reddy is not quite so good a jumper as Jumper the Hare, and while Jumper went clear over the fallen tree, Reddy landed on top of it, meaning to jump down on the other side. But he didn't. No, sir, he didn't. Instead he fell off backward with a scream of fright. What was the trouble? Why, Buster Bear had been lying down on the other side of that old tree, and when Jumper leaped over it Buster knew that Reddy was close at hand, and so he jumped up with a dreadful growl. Just as he had done the first time he saw Buster Bear, Reddy put his tail between his legs and started for home as fast as ever he could go.

"Ha, ha, ha!" shouted Buster Bear.

"Ho, ho, ho!" shouted Jumper the Hare.

"Hee, hee, hee!" tittered Sammy Jay, who had happened along just in time to see the fun.

ILLNESS DUE TO DEFICIENT DIET

Nobel Prize Winner Gives His Views on Subject.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"NUTRITION intimately concerns the welfare of man, and his place in future history will depend in no small part upon what he decides to eat." This statement was made by Dr. George R. Minot, professor of medicine at Harvard university and winner of the Nobel prize for medicine in 1934. According to Dr. Minot, an adequate diet throughout life will often prevent illness. In the long time studies that he has made of the condition of anemia, he has found that its cause is usually defective or deficient nutrition. It may arise from a lack of non-absorption of iron or of vitamin C or of a mysterious substance found in the liver. The condition of simple anemia may be prevented by including a liberal amount of iron and vitamin C.

The condition of pernicious anemia, which is much more serious and for which no remedy had been found until recently, is apparently related to the ability to utilize vitamin B-G. Vitamin B is found in muscle meat, eggs, rice polishings and yeast, which need an unknown gastric digestive factor to make them ready for the body. When this factor is lacking, there is danger of pernicious anemia. It may be supplied, however, by liver, kidneys and other organs. At present, this disease is being treated not only by an increase of these foods in the diet, but by liver extract taken by the mouth or through hypodermics.

According to Dr. Minot, the first cause of any type of anemia is a deficient diet.

SELECTED RECIPES

Liver Dumplings.

½ pound calves' liver
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon melted fat
1 teaspoon parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten
5 cups stock
Grind the liver fine and mix it with the bread crumbs. Sauté the onion in the fat in a skillet until delicately browned. Add the liver mixture, parsley, salt and pepper. Add the egg and mix well. Drop the mixture by teaspoonfuls into the hot, but not boiling, meat stock. Cook slowly ten to fifteen minutes and then serve with the soup. To make dumplings which may be shaped in balls, add one-half cup additional bread crumbs.

Sterling Sauce.

½ cup butter
1 egg yolk
1 cup light brown sugar
1 tablespoon milk
Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, then the egg yolk and milk, beat until light.

Spinach Nests.

2 cups cooked or canned spinach
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup grated cheese
6 bread cases
Melted butter
Make bread cases by cutting bread into three inch squares and cutting out the center. Roll each case in melted butter. Chop the spinach, mix with mayonnaise and fill the bread cases. Sprinkle with the cheese and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until bread is light brown and the cheese is melted.

Baked Eggs.

2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup milk
3 cups mashed potatoes
Salt
Pepper
2 tablespoons chopped chives or onion
5 eggs
Paprika
Add the butter and milk to the hot mashed potatoes and season to taste. Beat well, add the chives and spread in a shallow greased baking dish. Make five hollows, and in each place a raw egg. Sprinkle with paprika and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until the eggs are firm.

Johnny Cake.

1 cup cornmeal
¾ cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup milk
4 tablespoons butter, melted
Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine eggs and milk and stir into dry mixture. Stir in shortening and pour batter into well-greased baking pan, spreading about three-fourths of an inch in thickness. Bake in oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for about twenty-five minutes.

Barbecued Chicken.

2 two-pound chickens
Salt, pepper
¾ pound sweet butter
1½ cups chicken broth
1½ tablespoons tomato catsup
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon finely chopped onion
Disjoint chicken as for frying. Season with salt and pepper. Melt butter and fry chicken in it until golden brown. Mix other ingredients and cook together six minutes. Pour sauce over chicken and cook slowly about twenty minutes.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

PROTECT CRACKS AGAINST ICE

A CRACK in anything outdoors—woodwork, concrete, masonry—will be made wider should ice form within it. Before winter sets in, the outside of a house should be inspected to locate any cracks or crevices that would hold water and that might be enlarged by the expansion that occurs when ice forms. Stucco walls should be under special notice. Small surface cracks can be disregarded; the cracks to look out for are the deep ones in which water will be retained. A crack in stucco should be widened with a cold chisel, so that a patch can be packed deeply within. The patching material is a mixture of 1 part cement with 3 parts of clean building sand, and only enough water to make the mixture. At the time the crack is patched, the stucco should be thoroughly soaked with water to prevent the absorption of water from the patching material.

Cracks in brickwork and masonry are likely to be in the mortar joints. In closing these, the old mortar should be dug out for a depth of an inch or so to admit plenty of new mortar.

Special care should be taken to close all cracks in clapboards. Small cracks can be closed with thick paint; deeper ones with white lead, used either as it comes or smeared on cotton wicking or heavy cord. In particular, the joints of clapboards at corners should be noted; for it is there that cracking will be especially serious.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By JEAN

© By The Associated Newspapers

I WAS always told that a lady should never be seen eating on the street. I believed in the old myth for a long time. But as I keep telling my mother, life isn't what it used to be. In her day you had to go into the kitchen, make up a sandwich, and march out into the street with it if you wanted to be caught eating on the street. It was a lot of work for a mere principle. But now street eating creeps up on you. You pass a street corner stand where there are nice hot dogs on view and you get hungry. Well, if you decide to buy, you can't very well put your hot dog in your pocketbook and walk into the nearest hotel lobby to eat it. That, again, would be too much work for a mere principle.

You Should Pick Your Corner, if You Intend to Eat Hot Dogs on the Street.

The real crux of the problem now lies in how and where you do your street eating. In the first place, it is more ladylike to stand still while you eat, rather than to wander along the sidewalk munching. In the second place, it is considered more elite to stand still beside the hot dog wagon, rather than beside the church steps while you lap up your roll-and.

If it's a chocolate bar you've decided to eat on the public highways, be careful about choosing your streets. You shouldn't be caught eating on the main business street, or the ritziest parkway in town. What you do in the back alleys is your own business.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Make This Attractive Ottoman.

GET a wooden box from the grocer. It should be about as long as the width of the chair with which the ottoman is to be used. The depth of the sides should be four inches as shown here at A.

The legs should be made of two by two's or you may have a set of nicely turned legs from an old table or other piece of furniture that may be cut down to the right length. Fasten in place with long screws through the corners of the box as shown here at B.

About half a bat of cotton will be needed. Put five or six layers of the cotton on the top, cutting the first layer about four inches smaller all around than the top of the box. Place it in the center. Cut the next layer a little bigger and the others still bigger until the last one is the same size as the top. Now, cut a layer of cotton to go over the top and down over the ends as at C and another to go over the top and down the sides as at D.

Cut a piece of heavy muslin to fasten tightly over the cotton. Cut the corners of the muslin as at E. Sew with heavy thread as at F and then tack as at G.

To make the cover, stretch the top tightly over the muslin and sew it along the sides through the muslin, then make a straight four-inch band to go all around and add the ruffle to it.

Every homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

Witty Dr. Holmes

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous essayist, author and physician, father of the late justice, met a man who had devoted himself to lecturing throughout New England, without much ability for the task. In other words, he was much of a bore. "What are you about now?" asked Dr. Holmes. The answer was, "Oh, lecturing as usual. I speak at Dedham this evening." "Good," said Holmes, "I'm delighted to hear it. I never liked those Dedham people."
